Chevy Chase Citizens Favor Keeping Business Places Off N. W. Street.

REPORT TO ZONE BODY

Committee Also Scores Erection of Rows of Houses.

Preservation of Connecticut avenue as permanent residential boulevard in keeping with plans for the future development of Washington will be strongly urged by the committee of Chevy Chase citizens appointed as a consulting committee for the Zoning Advisory Commission.

It is announced, the committee which met July 9 at the home of R. K. Ferguson, the chairman, will shortly report to the commission that as a result of the canvass made by its members regarding the sentiments of citizens within the territory of the Citizens' Association of Chevy Chase, it regards the proposal to make Connecticut avenue a business street a mistake.

The consulting committee decided that the erection of business houses within the boundaries of the association should be prohibited, except on the west side of Connecticut avenue between Morrison street on the south and Northampton street on the north.

The committee also took a strong stand in favor of detached houses and against construction of rows of houses and semi-detached houses. It agreed that no dwelling should be erected on a lot less than fifty feet frontage, the side lines of the building to be no less than ten feet on each side.

LADY ASTOR IS ASKED TO SUE

Horatio Bottomley Calls Her Not Good Enough for Britain.

By ROBERT J. PREW.

(Universal Service Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 13.—A challenge to Lady Astor to sue him for libel is Horatio Bottomley's rejoinder to her defense of her American divorce. The famous editor tomorrow will display his flat on posters throughout Britain, dragging back into publicity the seventeen-year-old domestic trouble of the first woman member of Parliament, whose advocacy of prohibition for Britain and opposition to relaxation of the British divorce laws have earned her nationwide hostility.

In answer to Lady Astor's statement at Plymouth that she never wished to divorce and did not obtain it on the grounds of desertion, the editor quotes from a New York newspaper of February 5, 1913, as follows:

"In the beginning of the divorce proceedings against Shaw (Lady Astor's first husband) the single allegation on which Mrs. Shaw proceeded was desertion."

Bottomley asserts the majority of the members of the House of Commons agree with him that "Lady Astor is profoundly ignorant of the principles of public life and that what might be good enough in the House of Representatives is not good enough in the British House of Commons."

Round the Circle—

rabbit could scarcely penetrate the mass. They were in the great, lonely thicket of the Frio bottoms.

It was a mere nothing for a cattleman or a sheepman to be lost for a day or a night. The thing often happened. It was merely a matter of missing a meal or two and sleeping comfortably on your saddle blankets on a soft mattress of mesquite grass. But in Sam's case it was different. He had never been away from his ranch at night. Marthy was afraid of the country—afraid of Mexicans, of snakes, of panthers, even of sheep. So he had never left her alone.

It must have been about four in the afternoon when Sam's conscience awoke. He was limp and drenched, rather from anxiety than the heat or fatigue. Until now he had been hoping to strike the trail that led to the Frio crossing and the Charman ranch. He must have crossed it at some dim part of it and ridden beyond. If so he was now something like fifty miles from home. If he could strike a ranch—a camp—any place where he could get a fresh horse and inquire the road he would ride all night to get back to Marthy and the kid.

So, I have hinted, Sam was seized by remorse. There was a big lump in his throat as he thought of the cross words he had spoken to his wife. Surely it was hard enough for her to live in that horrible country without having to bear the burden of his abuse. He cursed himself grimly, and felt a sudden flush of shame that overglowed the summer heat. He remembered the many times he had flouted and called at her because she had a liking for reading. Her only source of amusement, her "pal's got," said Sam aloud with a sob, which unaccustomed

ANTI-SUFFRAGE ATTACK FAILS

Equity Court Grants Petition of Colby to Dismiss Complaint.

APPEAL WILL BE MADE

Constitutional League Beat In First Step Against Amendment.

The attack on the suffrage amendment by the American Constitutional League has failed in its first step. Justice Bailey in Equity Court yesterday granted the petition of Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby and Attorney General Mitchell Palmer to dismiss the complaint of the league, which was sponsored by Charles S. Fairchild, its president.

The case now goes to the Court of Appeals, where an adverse decision is had in this court it will be carried to the United States Supreme Court, it is announced.

Court Without Power.

Justice Bailey declared that the District Supreme Court has no power to go behind the acts of the legislature of the States which have ratified the amendment.

Justice Bailey said the petition of the league was premature and there was considerable doubt as to the actual right to maintain the suit.

Fairchild charged certain States had ratified the amendment by fraudulent and irregular means. Justice Bailey replied to this by referring to a recent decision of the Court of Appeals which declared that it was not the business of the Secretary of State to inquire into the method of ratification, but to obey the law requiring him to issue a proclamation, when a sufficient number of States had ratified an amendment.

Few Women Present.

Barely a half dozen members of the National Woman's Party were present at the short hearing. Everett P. Wheeler, of New York, did most of the talking. He was one of the league as represented by Fairchild. The government was represented by Assistant District Attorney James B. Archer and Solicitor-General W. L. Frierson.

SALE OF HOG ISLAND HELD UP FOR PRESENT

Hog Island will not be offered for sale until President Wilson appoints the new Shipping Board provided for under the shipping act passed just before Congress adjourned. This information was obtained by Representative George W. Edmunds, of Philadelphia, who conferred with officials of the Shipping Board yesterday, and confirmed by Matthew C. Brush of the Hog Island establishment.

RETIREMENT COMMANDER WANTS TWO SALARIES

Commander Frank P. Baldwin, U. S. A., retired, will find out today whether or not he can be on the regular navy payroll for retired officers and still draw a salary from another branch of the government service.

Assistant District Attorney James B. Archer will represent the Shipping Board, whom Commander Baldwin sued for $400 back salary as supervisor of a bureau after he had retired from active duty in the navy. This will be a test case, and follows a ruling of the Comptroller of the Treasury that no retired naval officer on the regular payroll could receive money from the United States for further work or service.

When Commander Baldwin left the Shipping Board, he claimed, there was still owing to him one month's salary of $400 or more. Justice Bailey will hear the case.
